

ECONOMICS 10223
Introductory Microeconomics
Dr. John T. Harvey (Spring 2009)

COURSE DESCRIPTION: Economics 10223 explains the behavior of the individual agents in the economy: firms and consumers. These are understood in the context of a market economy and are studied from the perspective of multiple schools of thought. Doing the latter not only gives the introductory student a flavor of the controversies that exist in the discipline of economics, but it gives practice in analyzing, comparing, and evaluating the construction of arguments.

REQUIREMENTS: There will be three major exams. The points will be allocated as follows:

Exam One	30
Exam Two	30
Final Exam	+40
	100

Grades will be assigned on the following basis (parenthetical references are to the TCU Undergraduate Studies Bulletin definition of the performance necessary for the assignment of each grade):

100 to 89.5 points	A (Exceptional)
89 to 79.5 points	B (Superior)
79 to 69.5 points	C (Medium)
69 to 59.5 points	D (Inferior)
59.4 and less	F (Failure)

Because of the complexity of the subject matter, this course is very difficult. Be certain that you study well ahead of time!

GRADING ON IMPROVEMENT: I have always thought it fair to raise a student's grade when she showed significant improvement over the course of the semester. However, I am (for the reasons stated above) very uncomfortable with arbitrarily determining the bonus. Oh happy day! I have come up with a formula to use in this regard! Get out your calculator...

First off, because it is cumulative and will reflect your knowledge of all the course material, improvement is linked to your final exam score. To determine your improvement bonus first convert all your scores into percentages (e.g., 90% instead of 27/30). Then subtract your lower of your first two exam scores from your final exam percentage and divide that total by 10. That is your bonus, and it will be added to your course total. Note that theoretically the bonus can vary from 10 percentage points (with a 100% on the final and a 0% on either exam one or exam two) to 0 (with a final exam score that does not exceed your lowest score).

ABSENCE POLICY: The TCU Faculty/Staff Handbook requires that faculty be aware of the attendance of students and, if necessary, report frequent absences. In this class "frequent" will be defined as three or more.

REMINDER: Economics majors must earn a C or better in order to count economics courses toward their economics degree (though as a "D" it can be an elective).

FINAL EXAM: Our final is scheduled for 3:00pm on Tuesday, May 5. Only those students with more than two final exams in a twenty-four hour period are permitted to reschedule any finals. According to University policy, the student must prove that this exceptions applies and this must be done prior to the last week of regular class sessions before final examinations.

MAKEUP EXAMS: This class will meet on the last regularly scheduled day of class (Tuesday, April 28) at the regular class time to take any makeups necessary. The student need not contact the instructor with an excuse to take a makeup. Simply miss the regular exam day and you are entitled to take the makeup. Only one exam may be missed in this manner, however. Before any other such incidents I must be contacted before the time of the exam.

ACADEMIC HONESTY: I do my utmost to see to it that those who are studying hard in my course get full credit for their work and that they are not cheated by classmates. I do this primarily by removing temptation and closely monitoring all exams. However, in the event that my vigilance is not sufficient and a case of academic dishonesty does come to my attention, I give my word to the honest members of the class that the offending party will be prosecuted to the full extent allowed by University policy. Speaking of the latter, section 3.4 of the Code of Student Conduct¹ defines academic misconduct as including but not limited to cheating, plagiarism, collusion, abuse of resource materials, computer misuse, fabrication and falsification, multiple submission, complicity in academic misconduct, and bearing false witness (definitions of each are available from the link in footnote 1).

Students are not the only ones who should be held to a moral standard in the process of determining course grades. It is equally vital to the integrity of the course that the instructor maintain the highest level of honesty. I promise everyone that, first, no student will have a grade changed simply because they made inquiries regarding my evaluation. Nor will someone in our class receive a higher grade on the basis of "need" (to keep a scholarship, to stay in school, to receive Economics credit, to not be killed by parents, etc.). If those are to be criteria for the determination of grades, then they should appear in the syllabus as assignments. Furthermore, the exams will be graded blindly (i.e., no names) and, at the end of the semester, the one and only place I will look to calculate students' grades will be their cumulative performance on the tests. The standard I will apply in determining letter grades absolutely will be the one listed above, and I promise that it will be the same for everyone. Finally, I feel very strongly that it is each student's right to understand how their grade was determined, and I am always happy to fully explain any questions you may have.

CLASSROOM ETIQUETTE: Among my responsibilities is ensuring that students find the classroom environment one in which it is easy to concentrate on the material I am presenting. Fortunately, in my experience, the VAST majority of students already know exactly how to conduct themselves in a college classroom. However, if you find that someone's behavior is distracting you, please feel free to inform me and I'll take care of the situation. In the meantime, I'll do my best to keep disturbances (talking, in particular) to a minimum. Everybody pays the same tuition and you have every right to be able to focus on the lecture.

In terms of the student-professor relationship, I operate on the assumption that I am dealing with adults who deserve my respect as such and who understand that they are responsible for their actions. I expect the same in return and have only rarely been disappointed in this. One area where I have experienced frequent problems, however, is in terms of student appointments. I make great efforts to meet with students at their convenience and am happy to do so. This is part of my job and I enjoy it. But, you would be surprised at how many students come late to appointments or forget them completely (I literally had a semester during which not a single student ever bothered to show up for the appointment they had made!).

BLUE BOOKS FOR EXAMS: I would appreciate it if you would purchase Blue Books for each of the exams. Please have these to me by February 3. If you do, I'll add 0.5 pts to your final course grade!

¹The Code of Student Conduct can be found here:: <http://www.sa.tcu.edu/handbook/code.htm>.

ASSIGNMENTS: The text is David Colander's Microeconomics (7th Edition). As we will only be using a subset of the chapters, I had the publishers build us a custom book (which is considerably cheaper!). It's available at the book store. Any other course materials can be found here:

CALCULATORS AND TRANSLATORS : You will never need a calculator for my exams. Those students for whom English is not their native language may bring a dictionary, but not an electronic one. Please let me see the dictionary before class.

PICTURE DAY: By golly gosh, you are paying a lot of money to come to TCU (well, someone is)—you deserve to have your professors know your name! So, on the second or third day of class I'll be taking all your pictures (to which you'll add your names later) so that I can study, study, study. By exam one I should know everyone's name AND which face it goes with!
